she gained in the Civil War to help the humanitarian effort during the Franco-Prussian War.

The U.S. is understood to be ready to join a dozen or more European countries to honor the Red Cross flag—a symbol of neutrality of the armed forces' medical services and civilian volunteers who treat the wounded.

Barton has succeeded in gaining U.S. support after pledging that the new American Red Cross will respond to wars and other crises.

AMERICA'S first subway system got rolling in Boston in 1897. The first "Big Dig" was designed to tackle urban traffic jams. Passengers rode in an open trolley car along a "subway" passage until the TEMC to Switzerland, and
